Introduction of the guest was given by Dr. P.N. Deshmukh.

II. Dr.Prashant Nikhade's Address

Dr.Prashant Nikhade's Inspires Students at Shivaji Science College's Student Induction Program (SIP Day 2nd)

Dr. Prashant Nikhade, addressed the newly admitted students.

His interaction focused on the importance of self-identification, personal development, discipline, academic growth and contributing positively to society. He encouraged students to make effective use of their college life, develop confidence, acquire new skills and maintain a positive attitude towards learning and personal development.

The speaker urged students to identify their strengths, use technology responsibly, maintain good mental and physical health, and contribute meaningfully to society during an inspirational address organised as part of the college's induction programme.

The speaker, an alumnus and medical professional, shared personal experiences from his student days at the institution and recalled how the college had shaped his academic and professional journey. He encouraged students to make the most of their formative years by developing skills beyond their regular curriculum.

Speaking about the rapid growth of Artificial Intelligence and social media, he said that technology should be used as a tool for learning and progress, but students must not blindly believe everything they encounter online. He emphasised the difference between knowledge and wisdom, stating that knowledge is about knowing information, while wisdom lies in understanding when and how to use it.

The speaker also stressed the importance of discovering one's individual abilities instead of constantly comparing oneself with others. Referring to personalities such as Lionel Messi, Jonty Rhodes, Thomas Edison and APJ Abdul Kalam, he said that extraordinary achievements are often the result of identifying one's strengths and making an "extra effort."

He highlighted the importance of teachers and parents in a student's development, describing the teacher as a Guru who removes the darkness of ignorance. He said that academic marks are important, but marks alone cannot determine a person's potential. Students must develop quality, creativity, practical thinking and social responsibility alongside academic performance. Encouraging students to learn from failure, he said mistakes should not be feared if they become opportunities for learning. However, the same mistakes should not be repeated. He also advised students to read beyond their prescribed syllabus and explore literature, history, science and biographies to broaden their perspective.

The speaker expressed concern over increasing dependence on digital communication and urged students to maintain meaningful human relationships. He called for greater dialogue, empathy and mutual respect, observing that differences of opinion should not turn into differences of heart. Mental health was another major focus of the address. Students were encouraged to speak openly with parents, teachers or trusted friends whenever they experienced anxiety, stress or emotional difficulties. The speaker emphasized that health includes physical, mental and social wellbeing, and that peace of mind is an important measure of success. He also advised students to maintain adequate sleep, exercise regularly and stay away from tobacco and other addictions.

Recounting his experience during the COVID-19 pandemic and the subsequent mucormycosis crisis, he spoke about his involvement in efforts to address the situation in Nagpur. The experience, he said, reinforced the importance of collective responsibility and serving society during times of crisis.

Using the example of a small bird trying to extinguish a forest fire with drops of water, he urged students to contribute to society regardless of how small their individual contribution might appear. Quoting the message associated with Robin Sharma, he said, "The purpose of life is a life of purpose," and urged students to look beyond degrees and careers and consider what they could contribute to their families, society and the nation.

III. Ms.Pallavi's Address to student

The interaction generated considerable interest among the students, and they were encouraged to complete the enrollment process and take advantage of the skill-development opportunities offered through MKCL in collaboration with VG Rise.
